companies themselves, e.g. potential job applicants, will usually research the company online before making personal contact and can use these search engines to find out valuable information. The term “to google” is now a popular synonym for these searches and the verb is now included in the most recent editions of the Oxford Dictionary and the Webster’s Dictionary.

Professional Online PR, competent and ethical (all other means are rigorously penalized by search engines), is an absolute necessity for complete success.

We are Online PR professionals and support you with professional Internet articles, interesting Newsletters, constant updates of your online offers through new and add-ons as well as Search Engine Optimization and revision of your already existing internet sites.

The terms for our “Online PR” are also appropriate for small companies. Projects which PR Agency Berlin has assisted with such as gestohlen.org or ausbildung-hebamme.de have achieved great listings on Google, Yahoo etc. despite having much competition for the crucial search words and keywords and over 2 million competitors on the internet.

We can take care of your Online Public Relations and Online Marketing pragmatically, successfully and comprehensibly.
